

I just recently heard about The FCC looking into raising the cost per minute on prepaid phone cards and hope it is a rumor. If not, I just want to express our feelings as to: Don't you people have anything else to do besides raising the prices on all our communications? We happen to be on a fixed income, and it becomes pretty discouraging when all these big companies keep hitting the "little guy" when trying to make ends meet.

Sincerely mean't,
Mr. & Mrs. Donald Sickel
